

pinning - but perhaps I told you about it in a previous letter.

Mamie and Kieley have no doubt told you how our beautiful Indian summer came to a sudden end.
We are still having dense fogs that coat all objects with thick layers of frost, indeed it became so heavy that the power lines broke last Saturday and we were without power for 7 hours. That was not so inconvenient as the night winter struck and left us powerless for 13 1/2 hours.

The baby is coming right along - she can about walk alone. She just needs a bit more confidence in herself for she scarcely touches us and has taken 2 and 3 steps alone. She and Joan enjoy one another.
Dale is playing Santa Claus making a good-looking rifle for himself and Jackie (boys' interest seem to run to guns where they hear so much talk of shooting and war), a nice stick-horse for Joan (she wanted one so badly and those to be had her were only poor excuses - too high in price). He's also making her a swinging cradle and a bench for her and Baby as well as a low making horse for the baby. He all year with a fine birthday in October was the most happy that year with a fine birthday in October
