Dear Mother:

I got out of Idc. at about eleven o'clock the night that I left there. I should have got out at five fifteen but there were too many waiting. After waiting for about an hour and a half the buses were all filled and they announced that the next bus would leave at nine forty five. After sitting down and resting for a couple of hours I got in the crowd again. After being in the crowd for another hour and a half I had worked up to ten or fifteen feet from the door. When they called the nine forty five bus there were 200 + three hundred people in the jam. The sweat was running down my face and I was squeezed in so tight I could scarcely breathe. By the time they had loaded out three buses I was still close to the door then they said that the next would be at eleven forty five.
Quite a few people could not stand at any longer and moved out that let me a little closer. (over) got some more books so I managed to get started.

I got here a little before one o'clock and went up to Milton's office. There were about a dozen people waiting to see him and more coming all the time. After I had been there a half hour or so a girl came out and asked if I had an appointment. I told her that I was his brother and that he was not expecting me. She took me into his office and told him there was a man to see him as soon as he could. After ten or fifteen minutes he came in. He was surely surprised to see me. He got rid of those that were waiting as quickly as he could and we came home to lunch. I left until he was ready to go out on night calls, then I went with him. We got back about one o'clock.

Helen was here. She said she had planned to go for a vacation but that the children were not well enough to permit. So she had given it up. She seemed glad to see me, and the kids were too. Susan said I looked a lot different to what she remembered me. In answer they are all as well as usual now. They are all up and around.

I called Dory last night. They are all well and asked about you. This letter may be for my ~~own~~ ~~needs~~ ~~and~~ ~~the~~ ~~needs~~.
all send their love.
Love Wesley.
