Beautiful love
letter begging forgiveness for something

Wiston Feb. 9th 1855

My Dear Friend Anna

Yours of the 2^d in my possession I received last night. Raged about to see and get it from me. I had not been to the office for several days. I thought there would be a letter there from you and so I went and was not fooled, once that I have not been I am always so anxious to ans. your letters of late I can hardly wait to get them. I was up this morning before any one else got up on purpose to write you but my fingers are so cold I can hardly hold the pen. Have no fire yet. You must excuse paper for I have no bite with me. Well, you were pleased with Mrs. Thompson's opinion. Glad to hear it. What points did he miss if any? I thought he was very near right. ~~but~~ did not tell him so. It was the small photo he looked at. And you read his note first & left Frank to the last. Just so Mrs. B. Your logic confuses Anna, but it all rights I thought you curiosity would creep that way - Was the reason I asked you. The book you sent I have not read yet I like to spend them. Will be in Boston this week & may come to L. Sat. Am very well at present

Had a letter from home, and in a while at G.
I am rather cold to write you much and I'm not in a good humor either, knowing you but and I must go to town. Oh! How rich I am getting of such a life as I can read leading, and you would like to go to school would you? Will don't let the idea creep into your mind, you will be tempted to practice it. What shall I tell the Par. for your request your paper writing is - I have expected a letter from you. How much I wish of your kind to write The folks have company here and it is time I was in town so I will quit for the present May write more when I get down. If not don't I sign my name around your name
As Ever Your True and Faithful Friend
