

entrance, it being about 4 ft wide and seven high—

To return to the engine room had not waited long when the foreman came and said he was ready to escort us down the dark and dismal tunnel. The engineer presented me with a little copier lamp that looked like a miniature saucepan inverted it had a little nose where the light came from. I was told to follow the Foreman which I did he conducted me to a car told me to climb in, which I did in the following manner

Mr. Fishburn got in first took my lamp as well as his own. The car resembles a huge wheelbarrow (only of course there are four wheels) which holds over a ton of coal. I placed my hands on the side and

Dear Sister Nora

Yours of the 22nd to hand<sup>ed</sup> and found me very blue. Had I not rec'd your letter to day I would have been bluer than a bag of indigo by to-morrow morning. But since reading your letter<sup>ed</sup> and eating a un-common hearty supper I feel much better.

I'm pleased to hear that you are going to teach<sup>ed</sup> and hope the fate is so decreed that you will teach a year instead of a few weeks. You can stand it as well as I.
