Sunday Morning

My Dear Friend
Your letter of the 12 was delivered to me last night. A very short one for you to write, but a very welcome one to me.

It was very late when I came home after 11 O'c, & sleeping late this morning I have a head ache. Something of uncon-venience for me. Being you sent many letters I could not resist writing. You must excuse the brevity of it for I feel like it will be extremely so. Yes my dear you are very good to write so many letters & receive none but you must like other girls attend to me you are entirely different. This is why I love you - and if you should write as many more without an ans. I feel that God's love for Will would ^{not} be lessened by so doing - But I'll not allow you to be put to that test. I have no desire to test my girl before her with my whole heart - & I hope she trusts me the same. How pleasant our lives will be if this confidence is never broken - This is the main spring to married marriage since Mr. Larson has had me helping her drive flies out of the house & I have written what I did not want to do if I have time I'll write another - I am interrupted again -

I'll be back again - & will not have time to write you this morning will to night - I send this anyway

Yes now I am done hawking & will be done stacking this
wk. I will be down in 8 or 10 days I want to see it wa very badly. I am tolerably well I have not been in my good health since I came in the last time Is your report getting burdensome to you?

Don't procrastinate she had not taken it - It will soon be out & do you think you would like to teach again?

Have you set the time for your wedding now, is as good for me as any month & you know what day will suit you best - you can tell me when I am down -

Don't you feel more like putting it off than ever? I think you do! But remember now that procrastination is the thief of time! I am at the bottom of this page & will quit excuse paper it is all I have on hand & the last sheet of this

Be a very good girl & write me quite often & some time I will repay you for full if not immediately

Sept 20 Ever Yours Lovingly Will
