Miss Nora E. Crockett.

My dear friend! Your reminder was not needed, to impress upon my mind, that I was indebted to you for a letter. I will send you some questions with pleasure, and hope your class will do well on them.

Our school is full. I have no vacant seat - there are fortyfive little folks and Mrs. Appleby's room is full. Our first class are studying Philosophy, History Physiology and Rhetoric. They are solving problems in three or more unknown quantities. To night Mr Parkinson and Mr Cragan are writing a composition about clouds. The house is full - only twenty six of us and sixteen of the number are boys.

How are you getting along with your school? How about the kissing?

I suppose your folks will send some word and tell you all the news. You know I am no news hand - for I don't go anywhere to hear any.

I think you will find the following examples will be a good test for your class.

" 265 Ex. 25, 27, 30, 33

" 266, Ex. 43.

" 268. Ex. 52, 55, 59.

After you have examined them send me word please, how they do - the lowest and highest percentages.

I will write you again
soon and a longer letter.

Yours in love
Eda Dow Lord.
